THACKERY ON DEATH.

The following is taken from a letter of condolence written by Thackery to Mrs. Proctor on the death of her mother, shortly before Thackery's death. The letter is found in the biographical introduction to "Denis Duval," the twelfth in the valuable biographical edition of Thackery's complete works published in the United States by Harper & Bros., and shows the great novelist as he was at heart, earnest and sublime; not the cynic, the satirist that so many have considered him. The introduction to the thirteen volumes of this new edition constitute the only biography in existence of Thackery.

"Thinking of death," says Thackery, "is thinking of God inscrutable, immeasurable, endless, beginningless, supreme, awfully solitary. Little children step off this earth into the infinite and we tear our hearts out over their sweet, cold hands and smiling faces, that drop indifferent when you cease holding them, and smile as the lid is closing over them. I don't think we deplore the old, who have had enough of living and striving, and have buried so many others and must be weary of living—it seems time for them to go—for where's the pleasure of staying when the feast is over, and the flowers withered, and the guests gone? Isn't it better to blow the light out than sit on among the broken meats, and collapsed jellies and rapid heartbeats? I go to what I don't know—but to God's next world, which is His and He made it. One paces up and down the shore yet awhile, and looks toward the unknown ocean, and thinks of the traveler whose boat sailed yesterday. Those we love can but walk down the pier with us—the voyage we must make alone. Except for the young or very happy, I can't say I am sorry for any one who dies."

A Madison county woman kept a record and says that forty snows have fallen the past winter.

A Gallatin county farmer last year experimented with two acres of horseradish and sold the crop for $165.45 in the Cincinnati market. He says he will double the product this year. It requires very little cultivation and is a profitable crop to raise.

The annual consumption of beef and mutton in the United Kingdom reaches the enormous aggregate of 1,660,500 tons.

Colby Taylor, of Richmond, is trying the experiment of raising English ring-necked pheasants. A friend sent him eleven eggs last fall, and he set them, the result being ten young pheasants. These are now laying, and hopes soon to have a whole yard full of the birds.

By allowing the accumulations in the bowels to remain, the entire system is poisoned. DeWitt's Little Early Risers regulate the bowels. Try them and you will always use them. 1m Stormes Drug Store.

It is said that calico print works consume 40,000,000 dozen of eggs a year and that wine clarifiers use about 10,000,000 dozen. Photographers and others also use large quantities and the wants to the commercial arts are said to be increasing rapidly.

Importations of cattle from Mexico have been growing smaller for three years. During last month only 3,951 head came across the border, as against 18,825 in March, 1898, and 46,177 in March, 1897. Three months' importation this year only amount to 11,202 head as against 37,531 a year ago and 87,460 two years ago.

An English paper reports that there are 2,550,000 pounds of honey, worth $155,000 imported into England each year. The principal part of this comes from the United States, Chile and Peru, but the British and Spanish West Indies, France, Australasia, Germany, Canada and Italy have helped to keep up the supply.

The farmer that keeps up the fertility of his soil is always planning how he can best return to the land in the shape of manures of fertilizers the plant food that his crop has appropriated. And, sagely remarks an exchange, the man who doesn't maintain the fertility of the farm will soon have a farm that won't maintain him.

Unless a woman eats sufficient nourishing food she can neither gain nor keep a good complexion. Food, when digested, is the base of all health, all strength, and all beauty. HERBINE will help digest what you eat, and give you the clear, bright, beautiful skin of health. Price 50 and 75 cts. C. C. & J. E. Stormes

A correspondent at Alaska, Ky., writes: "One of our neighbors who has dehorned over 1,000 cattle and lost only three, says the dehorning should be done when the calves are ten days to two weeks old, by clipping the hair from around the horn core, then damping slightly and burn with caustic potash. He has never known a single case to fail and 5 cents worth will dehorn a dozen calves. If dehorning is put off until the animal is one to two years old the cost will be from $1 to $3 per head owing to the stock and it sets them back in growth from one to two months, the shrinkage and cost for feeding during the time of curing making the cost. The best time of the year for dehorning aged cattle is the last of October or first of November and they should have no feed or water the day of dehorning or be allowed to run to hay or straw ricks afterward.

If you are interested in horses, you should subscribe for the American Stock Farm, Lexington, Ky. The price is $2.00 per year, but you can secure it from now until January 1, 1900 for $1.00, if you will mention this paper when writing. mar30tf

Commercial Convention. Louisville, Ky., May, 1st, 99. To the Citizens of Kentucky:

The undersigned, appointment as an Executive Committee at the First Commercial Convention of the State of Kentucky held in May, 1898, were authorized to call the Second Annual Convention at such time and place in the month of May, 1899, as they judged best. The Committee held a meeting March 14th, and unanimously agreed upon holding this Convention in the City of Louisville, Monday and Tuesday, May 22nd and 23rd.

The purpose for which this Convention is called should enlist the interest of every Kentuckian. It is solely for the promotion of the material welfare of our Commonwealth. It is strictly non-political. All of our citizens are now invited to come together to take counsel as to how best promote Kentucky's material interests in all of its branches—whether Agricultural, Financial, Manufacturing, Mercantile, Mining or Timber. Other states are taking similar action.—The State of Tennessee has recently held her second State Industrial Convention; Georgia has held her first and one is now called in the great State of New York. By united effort and friendly counsel, good will certainly result. The program for the Convention has been partially prepared. The subjects chosen for discussion are of practical and general importance. Distinguished speakers from different sections of the State have been invited to introduce these subjects, and every one present will be invited to take part in the discussion to follow. The full programme will be announced later, as soon as the invited speakers have all been heard from. It is proposed, as last year, to publish a Journal of this Convention. The publication of the proceedings of the last has been distributed widely, and has been of service to Kentucky. The local Committee on Entertainment are arranging plans to make the visit of Delegates pleasant in every way. The Transportation Committee will arrange with the Railroad and Steamboat Companies for reduced rates of fare. The Mayor of every Town and City in the State, and the County Judge of every County will be formally requested to attend and to name list of delegates to represent with themselves their respective Towns and Counties. Each Industrial Association in the State, viz: Agricultural, Financial, Manufacturing, Mercantile, etc., is entitled to one vote and their hearty co-operation is requested. Every Kentuckian paper will be invited to send a representative who will be entitled to all the privileges of the floor, and, in addition, all other good citizens are most cordially invited to be present at the sessions of the Convention. Let us make a united effort to keep Kentucky abreast of the most enterprising and favored of the States of the Union. Let us come together to discuss the best use to make of the advantages which we possess, and give out the information as to those advantages to the whole country, so that the knowledge may redound to her prosperity and increase in her wealth, and in thrift. The Executive Committee asks of every Kentuckian in the entire State, the publication of the foregoing address. We all recognize the powerful influence of the press for public good, and its co-operation is earnestly invoked to make this State Convention in every way a success. Respectfully,

John W. Yerkes, Chairman. Office over Haselden's hardware store.
